* Part-time: As observed by other researchers in Hong Kong (e.g., Constable 1997), 'part-time' or 'lives in' work involves undocumented work. The FHDI employment contract in Hong Kong specifically requires that a FHDI works full time and for one employer for the duration of the contract. However, some workers choose to undertake additional work outside of these regulations to increase their earnings. FODWs in Paris also use the term 'part-time' but with a slight variation. For those who are documented in Paris and working full time for an employer, this involves additional work for other employers on a casual basis. Those who are undocumented usually take more than one 'part-time' position to match or exceed the earning capacity of a full time position.

* Live-by: In Hong Kong, all contract workers "live in" their employers' house. If not given their own room, they either have to share a room with a child/children or are made to sleep in a communal part of the house (e.g., the kitchen or laundry. This does not apply to FODWs who undertake 'part-time' work and have pre-negotiated work hours for an employer or for several employers in which case the FODWs retire to a boarding house after their work hours. In Paris, live-ins are more likely to have their own quarters to which they retire after work. FODWs who do not live with their employers have their own place to which they retire after work. These places are either rented apartments (most team up with each other to be able to rent apartments in the more affordable areas on the outskirts of Paris) or they are chambres de bonne (maid’s quarters). These are around 10m² service apartments in a less-kept, 7/8-storey building without elevators, situated right next to their employers’ apartment building. These very small apartments are usually found in the wealthier areas of Paris like the XVIIth arrondissement. I have termed those FODWs who retire to these chambres de bonne after work, as "Live-by."*

- Smuggled/Trafficked: As I explain in chapter 2, despite recent efforts to distinguish between traffickers and smugglers (see e.g. in ILO 2001), there is still insufficient explanation of how, and when during the process of recruitment, they can be distinguished. This vague definition is also reflected in the experience of those respondents who used smugglers. Smugglers seem to have connections with traffickers, or their business involved elements of trafficking. For example, Indiana’s sister had hired smugglers for Indiana’s passage to Paris. When, at the time of ‘delivery’, Indiana’s sister was late in picking Indiana up from the ‘drop-off point,’ and had yet to pay the full amount for the smugglers’ services, Indiana tells of how the smugglers were saying to her that she would not be allowed to leave until her debt had been paid. The smugglers had explicitly suggested that sex work would be one way that she could pay the debt. Fortunately for Indiana, her sister eventually came to pay and pick her up.

Appendix 3: Typical Migration Cycle of a Migrant Woman Worker

Adapted from: Sim (2001), ‘Organising Discontent: NGOs for Southeast Asian migrant workers in Hong Kong,’ SEARC working papers, City University Hong Kong

- Impoverishment, lack of economic opportunities, unemployment [marital problems]
- Decision to explore short-term economic gain
- Enquiry: friends, family, acquaintances, job-placement agencies
- Departure: leaves sending country by air, sea or land, using various modes of transportation
- Pre-departure: search for an employer; for those in regulated occupations – processing of papers e.g. employment agreements; no such papers for unregulated workers; both regulated and unregulated workers, fees levied by agents resulting in debts incurred to them
- Medical check-up, training and orientation towards working environment in foreign recipient country for those in regulates occupations (e.g. nurses and most domestic workers). This step may be skipped for those in unregulated occupations (e.g. some entertainers and most sex workers [and undocumented domestic work])
- Arrival in host country: met at airport by agent, those in regulated occupations are brought to the embassy or consulate but not those in unregulated occupations, meet employer
- Employment: (a) medical check-up and insurance for those in regulated occupations (b) for both regulated and unregulated workers, issues of wages, working conditions, vulnerability to abuses, remittances, savings, training, involvement in NGO activities, social networking.
- Repatriation: end of contract (either formal or informal), get an extension, [stay in host country undocumented until new work is found,] or return to home country, look for another contract overseas, thereby repeating cycle again.
Appendix 4: RESPECT Migrant Domestic Workers Charter of Rights
Rights, Equality, Solidarity, Power, Europe, Cooperation, Today

Domestic work in private households is important to European family life, to European economies and to European support systems. It is demanding work which requires a variety of skills and is often done by women who have migrated to Europe. Many have left their families and children in an attempt to find a way out of poverty.

Migrant domestic workers are part of the fabric of European society. Their dignity and their rights as people and workers must be protected.

We call for justice and equity for all migrant domestic workers; whether they are documented or undocumented; whether they are live-in or live-out; whether first or second generation; whether they are born in Africa, Asia, South America or Europe. Member states of the European Union must recognise the intrinsic dignity and crucial importance of domestic work and seek to educate their citizens accordingly. Relevant organisations in the EU have a duty to ensure that migrant domestic workers have information and the means to access the following rights:

- THE RIGHT to an immigration status which recognises that domestic work in private households is proper work.
- THE RIGHT to an immigration status for the worker independent of any employer.
- THE RIGHT to travel both within the host country and between all countries of the European Union.
- THE RIGHT to full and non-discriminatory employment rights and social protection, including minimum wage, sickness and maternity pay, and pension rights.
- THE RIGHT to change employer.
- THE RIGHT to a legally enforceable contract of employment setting out minimum wages, maximum hours and responsibilities.
- THE RIGHT to work free from fear of physical, sexual or psychological abuse.
- THE RIGHT to join a trade union.
- THE RIGHT to live and work free from racism.
- THE RIGHT to family life, including health, education and social rights for the children of migrant domestic workers.
- THE RIGHT to recognition of qualifications, training and experience obtained in the home country.
- THE RIGHT to personal and leisure time.

THE RESPECT NETWORK UNDERTAKES:

- To transform policy and practice at all levels, from the European Commission to the households of the European Union, to reflect this charter of rights.

- To ensure that migrant domestic workers are informed of their rights and have the means to access these rights.

- To work for the implementation of the charter of rights with migrants and refugees, trades unions, parliamentarians, human rights activists, and other relevant sectors.

Q37. Please tell me about your employers and employment situation?

Q37a. How important is it to have a good employer for you? - Very important, Important or Not important? Why? Why not?

Q37b. In your opinion, what characteristics and attributes should a ‘good’ employer have?

Q37c. Do you practice any form of resistance e.g. in times when you may have been unhappy with an employer’s request of or from you? ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ will do here. Why? Why not?

Q38. Do you think recruitment agencies are helpful to those FODWs who need to find work? Why? Why not?

Q39. Do you know anything about smuggling/trafficking? If yes, what are your thoughts on its costs and benefits to the FODW?

Q40. Anything else on domestic work employment?

6. On Your Choices

Q41. Do you feel that you are able to leave an employment situation in which you are not happy? [Did you feel that you were able to leave the unhappy employment situation you were in]? ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ will do here.

Q42. Did you, yourself choose to undertake overseas domestic work, or did someone else make the choice for you? ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ will do here. If yes, do you think, in retrospect, that you’ve made the right decision - yes, no or not sure?

Q42a. If yes, do you think, in retrospect, that you’ve made the right decision - yes, no or not sure?

Q43. Do you send money back home. If yes, why? What does this mean for you – an obligation or a choice? If no, why not?

Q44. How would you compare your life here now, and your life back home - would you say you have more, or less choices (or freedom to choose) here than back home? Why?

Q45. If you had a choice, would you stay here or overseas permanently or would you return home? Why? Why not?

Q46. Would you say you took a risk or gamble by undertaking overseas domestic work?

Q46a. What steps, if any did you take, to minimize the risks of overseas domestic work?

Q47. What do you think you have gained in undertaking overseas domestic work?

Q47a. What do you think you have lost in undertaking overseas domestic work?

Q47b. Do you have any regrets?

Q48. Why did you decide to work overseas as a domestic worker?

Q48a. Would you say that you decided to undertake overseas work for economic reasons more so than personal/social ones – or the other way around?

Q49. If you were earning enough i.e. rich in the Philippines, do you think you would still consider migrating? Why? Why Not?

Q50. What is your definition of ‘rich/wealthy’?
Q51. What are your plans and dreams for the future?

Q52. If you had the choice to work in any country in the world, where would it be and why?

Q53. From what you know, is there much difference between the earning power of FODWs who those who are illegally and legally here?

Q54. As a rough guess, how many, in percentage, FODWs around the world are working illegally? Legally?

Q55. As a rough guess, how many FODWs are here in this country illegally? Legally?

Q55a. What are the chances of getting caught if one is here illegally?

Q55b. What do you think is the worst that can happen if one is caught?

Q56. If all the foreigners in this country were all suddenly sent back home (as with La Peine and the Asian Financial Crisis), what would you do?

Q57. Anything else on ‘your choices’?

7. On Your Social Life here

Q58. Please tell me a little about your social life here, including church and other social gatherings attendance, hobbies, social relations with employers and the host community etc.

Q59. Would you say you are happy with your social life here? Why? Why not?

8. On Abuse and Slavery

Q60. What do you understand ‘abuse’ of overseas domestic workers to involve?
Q61. What do you think constitutes 'enslavement' of overseas domestic workers?

Q61a. How, if at all, do you think this differs from 'abuse'?

Q62. Were you aware of the risks of abuse and enslavement before you decided to undertake domestic work here? If yes, did you take them seriously or not? If yes to this, why did you still decide to come? If not, why not?

Q63. Do you feel that you have experienced some form of abuse as an overseas domestic worker now and at other times in other countries? 'Yes' or 'no' will do here.

Q64. If you see 'abuse' and 'enslavement' as different, do you feel also that you have experienced some form of 'enslavement' as an overseas domestic worker now and at other times in other countries? 'Yes' or 'no' will do here.

Q65. Who or what do you think enslaves/abuses?

Q66. How do you think abuse of (Filipina) ODWs differs from or similar to abuse of domestic workers in the Philippines?

Q67. I have a list here of the types of abuse that some overseas domestic workers have been reported, especially by NGOs, to have experienced. Please let me know if you are aware of other types of abuse which I may have forgotten to include here: Physical, mental, emotional, sexual, wage-withholding, passport-withholding, and 'enslavement.' Please let me know if you have any comments about this list.

Q68. As a 'guess', how many Filipina overseas domestic workers do you think suffer or have suffered from some form of abuse in this country; around the world?

Q69. Do you think that the abuse and/or enslavement of Filipina Overseas domestic workers is a problem?

Q69a. If yes, in what ways do you think we can go about solving the problem?
Q70. If you have been abused, or if you were to be abused, are you (now) aware of the help you can get in this city? If yes, what are they, to who would you go and how would you go about it?

Q71. How do you think an 'employed' Filipina overseas domestic worker differs from an 'enslaved' Filipina overseas domestic worker? If you think they differ, which category would you put yourself in?

Q72. Out of the following three categories, in which would you say your situation fits most appropriately: 'enslaved worker'; oppressed worker; not enslaved or oppressed worker i.e. ordinary wageworker'?

Q72a. If none of the above, how would you describe your situation?

Q74. How do you understand 'oppression'?

Q74a. How do you think 'abuse' and 'enslavement' differs from 'Oppression'?

Q75. What are your thoughts on Filipino and overseas domestic workers non-government organisations?

Q75a. Do you think NGOs do a fair job of representing your thoughts and experiences in public such as abused, servants/slaves etc? Do you think this has repercussions for your situation? If yes, how?

Q76. Do you think the Philippine Government does a fair job of representing you as 'heroines' of your country? Why? Why not?

Q77. In 1988, then President Corazon Aquino banned Filipinos from undertaking domestic work in Hong Kong as a move to protect them from abuse. There was a massive protest against this. Just recently, the Philippine government again issued a ban on entering Hong Kong as a result of the SARS outbreak. But it has been reported that a large number of Filipinos proceeded with their contracts for Hong Kong. What can you say about this? If for example, you had planned to leave the Philippines to go overseas and undertake domestic work, would these issues of abuse and grave health risks stop you from proceeding with your own contract?

Q78. What is your opinion about research on FODWs oppression? Do you think it is useful, not useful, other? Why, why not?

Q78a. How do you think I, as a researcher, should be representing you? If you were the researcher, and you had to choose either to protect FODWs from abuse but not from losing their jobs, how would you suggest your situation be handled?
